As the first building nears completion, Adera will be opening the doors to Prodigy's new onsite presentation centre on Saturday, February 28th at 118 – 6033 Gray Avenue (at UBC) in Vancouver.

Adera's second six-storey woodframe residential project at UBC, Prodigy is located in the Wesbrook Village — close to all manner of urban amenities, yet still only steps away from forested parks and the Pacific Ocean shoreline. Extensive green spaces, water features and pathways link the community together, while Mundell Park sits quaintly at the edge of the site.

The architecture of Prodigy is West Coast Modern with cedar features, overhangs, glass and metal railings. Inside, each home boasts an efficient and open floorplan with stainless steel Kitchen Aid appliances, a built-in gas cooktop and electric wall oven, quartz countertops, luxurious bathrooms, and a private balcony or rooftop deck (penthouse suites only).

Prodigy buyers can take advantage of Adera's i.D. By Me home personalization program, which allows owners to choose from a range of high-end finishings and features. Priced from $411,900, homes in the six-storey project are scheduled to be completed this summer. Want more info? Be sure to attend Prodigy's onsite sales centre grand opening February 28th starting at noon sharp. In the meantime, you can pay a visit to the current offsite presentation centre at 106 – 5983 Gray Avenue at UBC. The facility is open daily from 12pm to 5pm.
